David Bloch is a partner in Winston & Strawn's San Francisco office. He concentrates his practice on complex intellectual property litigation, including commercial disputes involving utility patents, design patents, copyrights, trademarks, and trade secrets. He has a particular specialization in the intersection of intellectual property and government procurement law.

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Reed College, Mr. Bloch obtained M.P.H. and J.D. cum laude degrees from The George Washington University in 1996. In 1997, he was a Fellow in International Trade Law with the University Institute of European Studies in Turin, Italy. He is a member of the Bars of the State of California and the District of Columbia.

Mr. Bloch's treatise, Intellectual Property in Government Contracts, was published by Oxford University Press in 2009. He also is the author or co-author of more than 25 academic papers covering topics from trademarks in government contracts to international jurisdiction over the Internet. He is a frequent lecturer and presenter on intellectual property and other topics.
